

MSU Criminal Justice

Contributed by Adam Robert Clegg

One of the many websites I have worked on in my time at University Relations , this is the School of Criminal Justice at Michigan State University 's website. This project is built from scratch using a standard development practice used at UR. This site was designed by one of UR's graphic designers and then handed over to me to build into an actual page. I was then responsible for adding all sorts of visual assets including new banner rotation pictures and a few photos of personnel. Once that was done, I also populated the content into the site in quite the whirlwind episode of site architecture and other stuff. I also helped ensure that the site met 508 and WAI usability standards.

The architecture isn't what I'd like it to be. There are a lot of areas of the site that lose the ability to back-track without the back button. Still in the end you have to go with the client's wishes and meet a deadline. Overall I am still pleased with this one.